It sounds like you're looking for information about financial assistance and mobile distribution at Tulsi College in Beed. While I don't have specific details about that institution, many colleges offer financial aid programs and initiatives to support students, including mobile distribution for educational purposes.

Here are a few steps you can take:

1. Contact the College Administration: Reach out directly to Tulsi College's administrative office or student services. They can provide specific information about financial aid, scholarships, and any mobile distribution programs.
2. Visit the College Website: Check the official website for information on financial assistance, eligibility criteria, and application processes. They may also have announcements about mobile distribution.
3. Student Support Services: Many colleges have dedicated departments for student support that can guide you through financial aid options or resources available to help with technology needs.
4. Community Programs: Look for local community organizations or government initiatives that might offer, assistance or resources for students in your area.
